

About Us

VideoAmp is a software and data company creating a more sophisticated, data-driven advertising ecosystem that redefines how media is valued, bought and sold.

Our platform provides measurement and optimization tools that unify audiences across the disparate systems of traditional TV, streaming video and digital media. We are unlocking new value for those that currently operate within a siloed view of their audiences, creating efficiencies for the entire industry.

We are transforming a 100-year old industry by powering a more effective three-way value exchange that results in advertisers increasing their return on investment, publishers increasing their revenues and improving the viewing experience for consumers.

Fast Facts

On VideoAmp's mission to revolutionize the way advertising is valued, bought and sold, we partner with more than half of the Fortune 50 Brands and have measured trillions of traditional and streaming TV impressions for our clients.
